Cannabis Edibles Parent/Guardian Resource

Introduction

There has been an increase in young people using edible cannabis products and experiencing effects of overdosing due to a lack of knowledge surrounding edibles. The latest reports show young people consuming edibles in sweet forms such as Haridos (see images below). This resource will cover, what are edibles, the signs of edible use, the dangers and what to do if edibles have been consumed.

What Are Edibles?

Edibles are food products that contain drugs, typically this is high concentration cannabis. It can be added to food through cannabis oil or infused into butter or oil used to make the food items.

What Do Edibles Look Like?

Edibles can come in a wide variety of forms such as cakes, cookies, brownies, sweets, lollipops, yoghurt or tea among others. They can look very similar to branded products such as Haribo's, Smarties and chocolate bars. They often have a THC (psychoactive component of cannabis) marking on the packaging like in the images. This is to highlight the fact they contain cannabis and will give the psychoactive effects of cannabis when consumed.

How Do I Know My Child Has Used Edibles?

Your child will present with similar effects to that of smoking cannabis. The effects of using cannabis can depend on the amount of THC/CBD, your child's mood, the environment and how often it is used. The short term effects are listed below and can be signs your child has used cannabis.

ATTENTION

- Blood shot eyes
- Dazed/dreamy demeanour
- Short term memory loss
- Faint/feeling sick
- The giggles
- The munchies
- Dry mouth
- Paranoia
- Anxiety

What Are The Dangers Of Using Edibles?

The concern surrounding the use of edibles, is the increased chance of overdosing on the drug, which can cause hospitalisation. This is because consuming cannabis as oppose to smoking it takes longer to feel the effects of the drug. It can usually take between 1–3 hrs for the drug to take effect when consumed, often causing users to consume more, believing the drug is not working. As an illegal drug, the amount of THC in the cannabis product also goes unregulated so it is hard to know how much is being consumed in these edible products. They are also easily available and can be bought over the internet. They can be laced with other drugs such as MDMA, this is part of the unknown danger. Any product containing THC is illegal and classed as a Class B drug.
