

Super Curriculum

A-Level Drama

Read 	Do 	Find
Read A Servant to Two Masters and Our Country's Good.	Print off the next year's programme of NT live cinema broadcasts and book to see one.	Go onto google expeditions and explore the arts and culture section. Search theatre into the search bar and spend 30 minutes exploring.
Get a book out from the library that explores one of the historical or political contexts of a play you are currently studying.	Get involved in the running of one of the extra-curricular activities in drama this term	Look into your local theatres. What's on and do they offer anything to young people like work experience or apprenticeships
Select, borrow and read a play out of the following types from the drama office or library a. a Shakespeare tragedy b. a play written last century c. a play written in the last 20 years.	Visit the Theatre and Performance collection in the V&A Museum.	Find and watch three Ted-X lectures. One related to Shakespeare, one related to theatre and its place in society over time and one of free choice.
Read this article about Theatre in education as a genre. There's a video to watch on here too.  What is TIE?	Watch the Vamos Mask Technique videos and have a go at the activities.	Find research and statistics about the issues within one of the plays you are currently covering in class.
Read about the following theatre companies: Complicite Wise Children Frantic Assembly	Watch these puppetry making videos from the National Theatre and make your own puppet. Film yourself making it perform.	Find previous productions of one of your plays and understand the viewpoint of the playwright, a director and a designer who has worked on it.